

Promise Neighborhoods Grants

On April 20, 2012 the U.S. Department of Education Office of Innovation and Improvement announced the availability of funding for the Promise Neighborhoods Grants (Catalog for Federal Domestic Assistance numbers: 84.215P (Planning) and 84.215N (Implementation)). The Promise Neighborhoods program provides support to a range of youth services, from K-12 education and early-learning programs to health and safety initiatives in neighborhoods, and access to learning technology. The department specified in a statement that the next rounds of grants can be used inside and outside of schools, and can also be used to “establish data systems to record and share the community’s development and progress.”

The deadline is July 27, 2012

Eligible applicants include nonprofit organizations, which may include faith-based nonprofit organizations, institutions of higher education, and Indian tribes.
